Fulbright Marks His Books

Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. and Gen. Nathan F. Twining do not, at the moment, stand very well in the books of Senator J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Two weeks ago Senator Fulbright announced that he would invite Secretary Gates and General Twining, along with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and Allen W. Dulles, head of the Central Intelligence Agency, to discuss with the committee the state of our defenses as related to the posture of our foreign policy.

Mr. Gates and General Twining have informed Senator Fulbright that their busy schedule will not permit them to testify soon on this subject. However, Senator Fulbright believes they will not find themselves so busy when he asks them to appear on the Mutual Security Bill.
